Philanthropy at its most generous!

Sudha Murty announces Rs. 25 crore aid for Kodagu

Mysuru, Oct. 10 (RK&BCT)- 'Giving back to the society' has been the policy of the Infosys First Family, with Founder N.R. Narayana Murthy and his wife Sudha Murty taking the lead.

Well-known for various philanthropic gestures, Sudha Murty, the Chairperson of Infosys Foundation which is the charity arm of the IT bellwether, today announced that the Foundation will donate Rs. 25 crore for rehabilitation works in flood-ravaged Kodagu District.

After inaugurating the 10-day Dasara atop Chamundi Hill this morning, Sudha Murty, also a prolific writer, said that Rs. 25 crore will be exclusively for rehabilitation works including construction of houses for those who have been rendered homeless.

"Infosys has grown from just Rs. 10,250 and today it is an IT giant, with headquarters in Bengaluru and providing jobs for lakhs of people worldwide. This would not have been possible without the support of the people of Karnataka, the successive governments and the local talent pool. We believe in giving back to the society and now our energies are focussed on that," she said and added, "Infosys will construct houses for the people in Kodagu and the government can provide other facilities such as roads and drinking water."

Candid confession

The saying To err is human, to forgive is divine is an ancient diktat which may be hard for mortals to adopt in daily life, however noble its message may be. The humorous modification of the saying, attributed to that inimitable public speaker Mark Twain (1835-1910), "To eat is human, to digest is divine" may be appropriate in our times, given the extended meaning for the act of eating, particularly the range of errors committed by people at large inviting public gaze after being reported in the dailies. The dramatically growing number of errors triggering action by the law-keeping machinery of the government, reportedly committed by both common people across the land as well as those in high posts with impressive profiles such as spiritual heads with large following, leaders contesting polls to the various Legislative bodies, academics of standing in their chosen fields, heads of their respective countries and so on, not to forget clergy of different faiths have tended to be marked by an intimate connect with sexuality, a human weakness proving the undoing of the error-prone players.

While exercising vigil and fail-safe caution guarding against committing errors, particularly those involving temptation, is not everybody's cup of tea. We come across in narratives traced to the land's distant past of how even strong-willed rishis and highly-placed characters have committed errors including sexuality. They also practised the culture of remorse and atonement (praayashchitta and pashchaathhaapa) as a get away.

Targeting females and children to commit sex-driven criminal acts, including heinous assaults resulting in their death, has tended to have taken its vice-like grip on society lately. Given the shyness in reporting such incidents on the part of many families, particularly among the rustics, their numbers finding publication in the dailies could be the proverbial tip of the iceberg. Even as the profiles of the offending flock, facing charges of raping has enlarged to a bewildering extent, both the law-making and law-enforcing wings in the land's administration find themselves at their wits' end in checking both the rate and number of such criminal acts.

The opening para of a report published by a widely read daily a few days ago which reads: "The Dalai Lama said on Saturday that he has known about sexual abuse by Buddhist teachers since the 1990s and that such allegations are nothing new," says it all. The opinion of the Tibetan spiritual leader is a case of candid confession that mocks at spirituality in the face of sexuality.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

ANGRY GODS: There is a poem by Rabindranath Tagore called "Debotar Graash" (Devoured by God), which narrates the story of a pilgrimage. The pilgrims, led by a village elder, a Brahmin, are taking a boat to the sacred place where the river meets the sea. On board is a widow whose young boy insists on accompanying her. Exasperated, the mother exclaims, "Let me go and throw you into the sea!" Of course, she regrets her harsh words at once; the boy comes along, and the pilgrims set out on their holy voyage. On the way back, the boat is caught in a violent storm and the pilgrims fear for their lives. Then an oarsman thunders, "Someone here has promised something to God and not fulfilled it!" Hence the storm, hence the punishment. The people are frantic — they start throwing their belongings into the water to placate the enraged God. Suddenly, the Brahmin, the leader of the expedition, points to the widow and shouts: "She's the one! She pledged her son to God and is now stealing him away!" The pilgrims roar — God cannot be denied his promised pound of flesh! The boy is torn from his mother and flung into the foaming water. — In Business Standard.

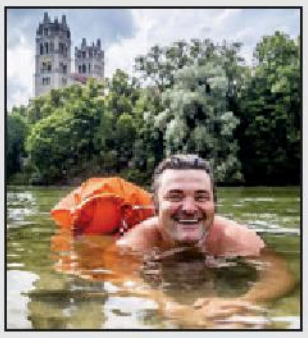
Australian teen paralysed after swallowing snail

Sydney: Sam Ballard, a rugby player from Sydney in Australia, swallowed a garden snail at a party and ended up ruining his life with quadriplegic (paralysis of all four limbs).

He was at a friend's party drinking red wine, when someone brought out a seemingly harmless garden snail and dared him to eat it. Sam just swallowed it whole and, after having a good laugh with his mates, went back to the party. The teen didn't give this silly dare a second thought, but he soon fell ill and had to be taken to the hospital, where doctors discovered that he had become infected with rat lungworm.

The young rugby player seem to be rallying against it as well, but then he took a turn for the worse and eventually fell into a 420-day coma and woke up with a quadriplegic.

Man swims to work every day to avoid traffic



Munich: 40-year-old Benjamin David of Munich, in a bid to avoid heavy traffic has been jumping into Isar River every day to swim to his workplace in Kulturstrand.

Benjamin used to be one of the thousands of Münchners trying to make their way to work on busy roads and cycling paths, but two years ago he decided that he needed to find a simpler alternative and the Isar River was the answer. Benjamin decided to swim to work and that's been his main commute for the past two years.

Benjamin wears a pair of shorts, but he always wears rubber sandals to protect his feet. People throw all kinds of things in the river, from glass bottles to bicycles, and the sandals provide protection. Right now, Benjamin David is the only person in Munich who uses the Isar River for his work commute, but with around 30,000 new people moving to the German city every year, he expects some of his fellow Münchners will be joining him for a daily swim soon.

VOICE OF THE READER

Is plastic ban really effective?

Sir,

This refers to the recent news item published in SOM under the title "Despite the ban, plastic adds to city's pile of waste." Environmentally harmful plastics, especially single-use items like glasses, spoons, dining sheets and straws are banned at many places including Mysuru since long. However, no one may believe that it is really banned in the city if they see the photo taken recently from the city itself.

Plastic covers are being used everywhere and people have not started practicing the good old habit of carrying handbags while going for shopping.

Though distribution of carry bags has reduced in shopping malls, I have seen people still demanding carry bags from vegetable vendors and roadside fruit vendors.

It is no surprise how the vendors are getting those bags in the market. Unless the suppliers and distributors are penalised, the imposed ban may not be effective.

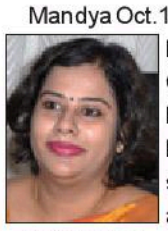
Mandya DC bans mining around KRS Dam

Mandya Oct.10 (Nagaiah&SR)- Mandya Deputy Commissioner N. Manjushree has banned mining, stone quarrying and all other allied activities in 20-kilometre radius around the Krishna Raja Sagar (KRS) Dam. The DC will issue an order in this regard in the next two days. A decision to this effect has been taken at an emergency meeting of officials chaired by DC at her office yesterday.



Manjushree

Speaking at the meeting, she said that the ban has been imposed in view of Karnataka State Natural Disasters Monitoring Committee (KSNDMC) recommending the Mandya District Administration to check damages and fractures in the Dam structures in the wake of high-intensity blasts in the mining areas around the Dam.

The DC had received the reports that usage of high-intensity explosives is damaging houses and buildings in the vicinity and they are developing cracks, apart from causing air pollution.

KSNDMC Director G.S. Srinivasa Reddy had submitted a report on Sept. 25 recommending the Mandya District Administration to take precautionary measures to control quarrying and mining activities within 15 to 20 kilometres of the KRS Dam and ensure the safety of the Dam that is the lifeline of the region, Bengaluru and Tamil Nadu.

The district has also received the reports illegal stone quarry unit operators carrying out their operations, blatantly violating Section 144 imposed in 20-kilometre radius after banning the usage of high-intensity explosives for quarrying activities.

Section 144 has been imposed in KRS and surrounding villages as supporters of illegal quarry operators are involved in rioting, causing damage to public property and obstructing officials' duty. The DC asked the officials to check such illegal activities besides putting an end to all mining and illegal stone quarrying.

She asked officials to prepare a detailed report of damages to KRS Dam caused by such mining activities besides the usage of high-intensity blasts after discussing with State Water Department officials. The District Administration has also constituted three teams comprising various department officials to check cases filed by the public regarding the damages caused by illegal mining.

She also said various people-friendly organisations, farmer leaders and public had also complained about illegal mining around KRS Dam by writing letters and grabbing the attention of the government through media.

The DC said that she had also received reports of illegal stone quarrying in the backwaters of KRS Dam in K.R. Nagar taluk of Mysuru district. A letter will be written to Deputy Commissioner of Mysuru recommending banning mining there, the DC said.

Superintendent of Police Shivaprakash Devaraj, Mines and Geology Department Officer Nagabhushan, Forest and other department officials were present at the meeting.

Task Force Committee asked to assess damages to KRS Dam

Mandya, Oct.10- Speaking to Star of Mysore, District Mines and Geology Department officer Nagabhushan said that a detailed and comprehensive report will be prepared on the damages caused by mining activities to KRS Dam.

The Task Force Committee headed by the department chiefs of Revenue, Forest, Mines and Geology has been constituted by the DC to prepare this report. Three batches of official team will prepare this report as per the DC's direction.

Mandya Superintendent Police Shivaprakash Devaraj said that the Police had received information that illegal stone quarrying activities carried out by some operators despite banning the use of high-intensity explosives around KRS Dam.

Officials had cracked down on illegal stone quarry units at three places in Pandavapura taluk and had booked cases on some people for violating Section 144.

Police will take stern action on illegal mining activities once the Deputy Commissioner issues the mining ban orders, he said.

Huge appreciation

Imposing mining ban around KRS by Mandya DC N. Manjushree has received huge appreciation from people of various walks of life. District Raitha Sangha President Suresh Shambunahalli welcomed the announcement.

"We have fought for more than 20 years to protect KRS Dam and have been behind the authorities to stop mining activities around the Dam that is the lifeline of the region. Now the DC has decided to impose a blanket ban. Our only concern is that the ban should not be eyewash," he said.

Mysuru, Oct. 10 (RK&BCT)- The 10-day Dasara festival showcasing the cultural diversity of Mysuru and Karnataka was formally inaugurated atop Chamundi Hill by Infosys Foundation Chairperson Sudha Murty this morning. Chanting prayers, philanthropist and writer Sudha Murty showered flower petals on the 'Utsava Murthy' of Goddess Chamundeshwari placed in a silver chariot in the Chamundeshwari Temple Complex at 7.30 am in the auspicious Tula Lagna between 7.05 am and 7.30 am.

As it was an early morning inauguration, the entire Temple Complex was covered in mist and cool air accompanied by perfumed pleasant smell of flowers and incense sticks that permeated the atmosphere. The temple too was decorated with a variety of flowers.

Accompanied by her husband N.R. Narayana Murthy, Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy, Mysuru District Minister G.T. Devegowda, Tourism Minister S.R. Mahesh, Kannada and Culture Minister Jayamala and a host of other dignitaries Sudha Murty entered the temple. The Chief Priest of the temple Shashishekar Dikshit, accompanied by other mantra-chanting priests, led the rituals.

Dasara has deep roots in mythology and was celebrated by the rulers of the Vijayanagar Empire (1336 AD to 1646 AD). After Vijayanagar kings, the tradition was continued by the Wadiyars. This is 408th Dasara that was started in the Mysuru region by Raja Wadiyar at Srirangapatna in 1610 and subsequently taken over by democratically elected governments that are continuing the tradition as "Naada Habba".

Addressing the gathering, Sudha Murty announced that the Infosys Foundation will donate Rs. 25 crore for rehabilitation measures in flood-ravaged Kodagu District.

Congress leaders stay away

Atop the Chamundi Hill this morning, local Congress leaders were conspicuous by their absence. Among the dignitaries who were present during the inauguration were (BJP and JD(S) leaders) Mysuru-Kodagu MP Pratap Simha, JD(S) State President and Hunsur MLA H. Vishwanath, Chamaraja MLA S.A. Ramdas, T. Narasipur MLA Ashwin Kumar, Periyapatna MLA K. Mahadev, Chamaraja MLA L. Nagendra, MLC K.T. Srikantegowda, Nanjangud MLA Harshavardhan, MLC Appaji Gowda.

Except for Congress leader and Cabinet Minister Jayamala, none of the local Congress leaders, MLAs and MPs were present, raising eyebrows. Backward Classes Minister (Congress) C. Puttaranga Shetty Narasimharaja MLA Tanveer Sait, Varuna MLA Dr. Yathindra Siddharamaiah, District Congress President Dr. B.J. Vijayakumar, City Congress President R. Murthy, Chamarajanagar MP R. Dhruvanarayana stayed away from the inauguration.

It may be recalled here that on Sept. 14, Puttaranga Shetty, who is also a member of the Dasara Executive Committee, staged a walk out from the Committee meeting alleging that the JD(S) was dominating the meeting and Dasara festivities. Even R. Murthy had earlier stated that Congress leaders were being ignored by JD(S) leaders.

Sudha Murty is a symbol of Karnataka

After participating in the Dasara inauguration, Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy said that he had decided to invite Sudha Murty as she will bring good luck to the entire people of Karnataka. "She is a mother and a symbol of Karnataka represented by love, sacrifice, selflessness. Her pujas to Goddess Chamundeshwari will bring good fortune to the State," he said.

Appreciating her gesture of donating Rs. 25 crore for Kodagu rehabilitation, Kumaraswamy said that the Infosys Foundation has contributed a lot towards Bengaluru Metro, Cyber Crime Hi-tech unit and has also done many philanthropic works in Mysuru.

Host of events

More than a dozen programmes at various venues will also be inaugurated today including Flower Show, Raitha Dasara, Dasara Sports, Dasara Wrestling, Women's Dasara, Children's Dasara, Dasara Exhibition, Food Festival (Aahara Mela), and the electrification. In the evening, the Palace Cultural programmes will be inaugurated by the CM.

The grand finale — the famed Jumboo Savari (Vijayadashami procession) — will begin from the Palace premises on October 19. Its highlight will be the procession of tableaux and folk artistes, and caparisoned elephant Arjuna carrying the Golden Howdah with the idol of Goddess Chamundeshwari.

This year there will be a special Jumboo rehearsal on Sunday, Oct. 14, complete with elephants, cultural troupes and tableaux. Those troupes and tableaux that miss a chance to perform on the Vijayadashami Day will be given a chance during this rehearsal. However, the Golden Howdah will not be used and instead, the wooden replica of the howdah will be used.

Hand that troubled Sudha Murty !

An allegedly uninvited guest at the Dasara inauguration kept the District Administration officials on their toes this morning. Wearing a bright-coloured saree, the guest was dominating the show, so much so that the main guest Sudha Murty had to face discomfort while showering flower petals on the idol of Goddess Chamundeshwari. Officials had no clue about that particular person and they assumed her to be Sudha Murty's friend or somebody from Infosys Foundation. Later, the Deputy Commissioner told SOM reporter that the lady in question was not in the guest list.

Sudha Murty praises Mysuru-Kodagu MP Pratap Simha's writing skills

Permission for Mahisha Dasara should not have been given, MP tells CM

Mysuru, Oct. 10 (RK&BCT)- Noted writer, novelist and philanthropist Sudha Murty today extolled the writing skills of Mysuru-Kodagu MP Pratap Simha, who despite his busy schedule, writes columns for newspapers. "I like Pratap Simha's writing skills and as a writer I am his fan too," Sudha Murty said after she inaugurated the 10-day Dasara festivities atop Chamundi Hill this morning.

Pratap Simha

Later, addressing the gathering, Pratap Simha opined that the government should not have given permission for Mahisha Dasara where Mahisha was portrayed as a divine being. "You inaugurate Dasara Festival that is a victory of Good over Evil. Good here is represented by Mahisasuramardhini Chamundeshwari, who killed Mahishasura and the evil here is Mahishasura. At the same time, you give permission to a handful of vested interests to celebrate Mahisha Dasara. Is it not double standards," the MP questioned Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy.

Saying that celebration of 'Mahisha Dasara' and glorification of demon Mahisha has hurt the sentiments of a vast population who believe in the powers of Goddess Chamundeshwari, Pratap Simha said, "Mahisha is a buffalo and a wicked character who was killed by the Goddess. Unfortunately, some people with vested interests are trying to portray Mahisha as a Godly character," he said and urged the government to curb such misleading celebrations.

Continuing his speech, Pratap Simha, in an oblique reference to Tipu Sultan without mentioning his name, said that due to the tyranny of the 18th Century ruler, Dasara was not celebrated between 1767 and 1799 AD. "History has proved that the ruler's tyranny was so much that the Mysore royal family members were imprisoned and were confined in dark chambers. The government must not give permission to celebrate the Jayanti of such a ruler," he urged Kumaraswamy, apparently recalling the celebration of Tipu Jayanti when Siddharamaiah was the Chief Minister.

Pratap Simha said that he did not raise these issues due to political compulsions and added that his words are backed by history and there are many historical references that will help the government too to take a wise decision.

Philanthropy at its most generous!

"Infosys will construct houses for the people in Kodagu and the government can provide other facilities such as roads and drinking water. The Foundation will take up work on laying a walking path at Hebbal Lake in Mysuru at a cost of Rs. 10 to 15 crore. The Foundation has already spent Rs. 38 crore for the development of the Hebbal Lake that includes silt removal, beautification, laying of stone benches, etc.," she said.

Recalling the contribution of the Wadiyars for Karnataka unification, she said that Wadiyars were the gift of the land. "Without Wadiyars, Karnataka would have been further divided and shared among other States. They were the unifying factor," she added.

Model Code of Conduct does not apply to Dasara festivities, clarifies EC

Poll Code impacts Srirangapatna Dasara

Mysuru, Oct.10 (RK&DM)- With the Election Commission (EC) clarifying that the Model Code of Conduct that has come into force following the announcement of Lok Sabha bypoll schedule, does not apply for Mysuru Dasara, the elected representatives and the district authorities have heaved a sigh of relief.

Clarifying on the issue, Deputy Commissioner (DC) Abhiram G. Sankar said that the Election Commission of India (ECI) has issued a clarification that the Dasara festivities has been exempted from poll code. The ECI has clarified that poll code does not apply is the district, barring K.R. Pointing out that following the ECI's clarification, all elected representatives including the Chief Minister can take part in Dasara festivities, the DC said Dasara-related events will be held as scheduled earlier.

However, sources said that the poll code will come in the way of appointments to various Dasara Sub-Committees.

Mysuru: A Look at its Past...

By Gouri Satya, Sr.Journalist

The four-century legacy of Mysore Palace

Dasara is no Dasara without the Maharaja's Palace. With a rich legacy of four centuries, both as a royal residence and as a centre of attraction, it has always been playing a crucial role during the 10-day-long celebrations. What is significant is even after four centuries, its pivotal role has not changed. In fact, its importance has doubled as the Mysore Palace hosts two Dasaras now — one, for the royal family in tune with the historic tradition, and the other, for the State for its celebrations.

The Wadiyars' Palace in Srirangapatna has played no less a crucial role. It has played a pivotal role for the royal celebrations in the Wadiyars' early days. While the Srirangapatna Palace has played a notable role for a period of two centuries from 1600s, the Mysore Palace came to focus only after 1800, when Krishnaraja Wadiyar III was installed on the throne and a residence was built for him in Mysuru.

The Srirangapatna Palace was the determining place for the Navaratri celebrations from the days of Raja Wadiyar (1578-1617) when he launched the maiden Dasara after taking over the island town and making it his capital in 1610.

One will know the central role the Srirangapatna Palace has played when one looks at the elaborate description of the Navaratri celebrations, decorations and ceremonies both inside and outside the royal residence available in Kannada literary works. Although exaggerated with poetic elaboration, yet these works of classic give us an impression of the Palace, its location and beauty of the Palace of the Wadiyars in their early period of rule.

An early work, Kanteerava Narasaraja Vijaya, and other similar works of Kannada of the period of the Wadiyars serve as evidence to show that their Palace existed close to Sri Ranganathaswamy Temple. Govinda Vaidya dedicates a whole chapter for the description of the Palace of Kanthirava Narasaraja Wadiyar (1638-1659) at Srirangapatna.

Even during Tipu Sultan there is evidence to show that a Palace of the Wadiyars existed in the town of Lord Ranganatha. The inscription which says, "Birth Place of H.H. Sri Krishnaraja Wadiyar III born Monday 9th July 1789," in a Mantap near the Temple and some other records, like a Srirangapatna map of 1799, confirm that the Palace of the Maharajas existed close to the temple.

When the Palace at Srirangapatna came into existence after Raja Wadiyar took over the place, The Annals of the Mysore Royal Family records that the Pattabhisekha (crowning ceremony) of Yaduraya (1399-1423), first of the Wadiyar kings in Mysuru, took place in the Palace in Mysuru. Again, the same 17th century Kanteerava Narasaraya Vijaya mentions about a Palace that existed in Mysuru, which was the capital of the Mysuru rulers, including Raja Wadiyar till he moved to Srirangapatna in 1610. He and other rulers visited Mysuru for worshipping Goddess Chamundeshwari often and stayed in the Palace in Mysuru.

The Palace that existed during the period of Hyder Ali Khan and Tipu Sultan in Mysuru was smaller in structure without any architectural skill. It was being used less often, and hence cared very little. The stones of the Palace Fort were shifted for building Nazarbad, a new extension outside the Palace fort-walls.

When the capital was shifted back to Mysuru in 1799 from Srirangapatna and the throne was restored to Krishnaraja Wadiyar III, there was no suitable building to accommodate the royal family in Mysuru. Initially, they were housed at a house in Nazarbad, where Dasara ceremonies is said to have been conducted.

Meanwhile, a new Palace was constructed on the remnants of the old Palace that existed prior to 1800 in Mysuru. This Palace was constructed around 1804. It even hosted a number of Europeans to attend the Durbar in 1805, when they expressed desire to see Krishnaraja Wadiyar III sitting on the throne and conducting the Dasara ceremonies. They attended the Durbar on a day fixed exclusively for them, paid their respects to the Maharaja and received gifts and flowers from him. This day came to be known as 'European Durbar Day.'

Old Palace in1890s.

The new Palace of Krishnaraja Wadiyar III in Mysuru was more commodious than elegant. It was surrounded on all sides by houses, many of them small and constructed of wattle and mud.

The front portion was gaudily painted and supported by four elaborately carved wooden pillars. It comprised the Sejje or the Durbar Hall, an open gallery where the King was sitting in Durbar on occasions like Dasara. It was here that the European Durbar was conducted.

The principal gate opened on a passage under the Sejje, leading to an open yard, which we now call the Ane Bagilu or the elephant gate. At the further or the west side of this courtyard was the door leading to the women's apartments, which occupied most of the western portion of the Palace.

The interiors and pillars were gaudily and thickly painted. The northern side of the Palace comprised various offices, such as the armoury, library etc., and on the south were the rooms occupied by the Maharaja. Of these, the most interesting was the Amba Vilasa, an upstair room sixty-five feet square and ten feet high, with a raised ceiling in the centre. It was here that Krishnaraja Wadiyar III received the European guests and transacted the ordinary business of the day.

A wooden railing separated that portion of the room in which the Maharaja's seat was placed from the rest, and the adjacent wall was hung with pictures, principally of officers connected at different periods with Mysore, which the Maharaja was accustomed to uncover and point out to his European visitors.

The floor was of chunam or lime mortar and, with the exception of the doors which were overlaid with richly carved ivory or silver, there was no attempt at magnificent display.

The sleeping and eating apartments of the Maharaja were for the most part small and confined and opened upon the Amba Vilasa. Outside of it, there was a stall in which was kept the sacred cow or the Pattada Hasu worshipped by the Maharaja. A temple was adjacent to it.

A devastating fire that broke out in 1897 destroyed a major portion of the northern side, leaving only the back portion, which still exists attached to the present Palace. It is called Karikal Thotti, because of the blackstone pillars. This part of the Palace now houses the personal museum of the Wadiyar family.

The fire that broke out was so destructive flames spread all around and entered into the Palace as well. The Palace was entirely made of wood and mud. The front, like its interiors, was gaudily painted with thick coats, and supported by four elaborately carved wooden pillars. The wax paintings had earned the title Aragina Mane (the house of wax) for the Palace. All these combustible materials, including the thick art works, caused the fire to spread swiftly.

The small ivory and silver doors elaborately made out, which were saved from the fire in 1897, are seen in the present Palace as one goes up the stairs towards the private Durbar Hall. They show the embossed figures of Krishnaraja Wadiyar III engaged in pleasure activities.

The present Palace has retained the same architectural details as those of the old Palace. But, it has been done on a larger scale and in a grander manner, with attention to safety aspects. While the newly-built front portion of the present Palace is in the Indo-Saracenic style, the old portion at the back is in traditional Hindu style.

Old order might have changed over the decades and centuries. The size and structure of the royal residence might have changed over the period. But, the Palace continues to be the focal centre as always, and for the 2018 Dasara too.

Crochet Queens knit caps, cowls for soldiers

T. Narasipur Govt. School students first to participate in Guinness Record

Mother India's Crochet Queens (MICQ) Area Coordinator Sharada C. Urs addressing a press meet at the Pathrakartara Bhavan in city recently as MICQ members Ranjani and Tanuja and craft teacher Anitha Jayaraman look on.

Mysuru, Oct.10- Mother India's Crochet Queens (MICQ), Mysuru, are taking part in a huge project of donating warm cowls and caps to the brave soldiers facing extreme weather conditions at the borders. Around six women and a few students of a government school from Mysuru are contributing more than 130 sets towards this noble cause.

Addressing a press meet recently at the Pathrakartara Bhavan, MICQ Area Coordinator Sharada C. Urs said that the cowls and caps are being knitted or crocheted in olive green and they plan to hand over to the Army in an event to be organised at the Army Camp in Ahmedabad on Nov.25.

According to Sharada Urs, the students of the Government Girls High School, T. Narasipur, became the first and only government school in India to participate in the third Guinness World Record (GWR). They have made 50 sets of cowls and caps.

This was made possible with the support of the Goodwill Ambassador of Karnataka Smitha Pratap who was instrumental in coordinating with the authorities of the school. The craft teacher of the school Anitha Jayaraman trained the students to crochet the items, she said.

MICQ breaks record: MICQ was conceived by Subashri Natarajan of Chennai, on Aug.1, 2015, with a vision to retrieve the art of crochet and an aim to break the previous Guinness World Record for the Largest Crochet Blanket which was 3,377 sq. metres. MICQ broke the record.

The blanket, made by more than 2,000 Indian women from all over the world, measured 11,148 square metres. On May 21, 2017, they set a Guinness World Record for the world's longest crocheted scarf — 14,089 kms in total. Then came their hat-trick Guinness World Record break.

They broke the previous record of 13,348 crochet sculptures by 58,917 crochet sculptures, which is 4.5 times more than the previous one, in the Largest Display of Crochet 3D sculptures at SRM University campus, Chennai on Jan. 21, 2018. All the items made for these records were donated to various charities, she said.

After the hat-trick records, the women decided to work on a project which is not meant for any record but a totally selfless service to the Indian Army, "Return with thanks to Indian Brave Brothers," she said.

Sharada Urs said that they were going to attempt their fourth GWR 'Most people crocheting simultaneously' in Jan. 2019, which will be held at the same time at various locations all over the country. Besides, in July 2019, they were planning their fifth GWR attempt. The concept for this attempt is 'Christmas Nativity.'

MICQ is looking to revive the age old craft of crochet to its past glory and hence is welcoming more members into its fold. Those interested may contact on email: sharadacursmicq@gmail.com or on Mob: 9945365438.

MICQ members Ranjani and Tanuja and craft teacher Anitha Jayaraman were present at the press meet.

Mysuru, Oct.10- University of Mysore (UoM), Singapore's National University and Tsinghua-Berkeley Shenzhen Institute have jointly developed an anti-cancer chemical agent. This has been accepted in the internationally reputed journal of Proceedings of the United States of America (PNAS).

Prof. Rangappa

The team, led by former UoM VC Prof. K.S. Rangappa and Prof. Peter Lobie from the National University of Singapore and Tsinghua-Berkeley Shenzhen Institute, have synthesised a cell and new drug that can act against wide range of cancers as a single agent.

Prof. Rangappa said that the 30 years of research, hard work of his team comprising Dr. Basappa, Dr. C.D. Mohan, Dr. K.S. Girish and Dr. Shobith of Adichunchanagiri Institute for Molecular Medicine have brought him a major breakthrough.

The chemical agent developed has been named 'NCB,' a unique synthesised molecule that will not kill healthy cells, he added.

He said that the newly synthesised compound efficiently decreased the viability of breast, endomaterial, prostate, ovary, liver, colon and pancreatic cancer cells. The anti-cancer activity of the compound was validated by different standard methods using cheminformatics platform and identified BAD (Bcl-2 agonist of cell death) that is a protein essential for driving patients towards death.

Speaking to SOM here this morning from Jerusalem, Prof. Rangappa said that he had been invited to present his research paper and findings at the World Cancer Institute, Jerusalem and the Cancer Institute of Germany.

WORD OF THE DAY

Nocuous

Pronunciation: NAH-kyuh-wus
Meaning: Harmful.
Origin: Many are familiar with the adjective 'innocuous', meaning "harmless," than with its antonymous relative nocuous. Both nocuous and innocuous have immediate Latin predecessors: 'nocuus' and 'innocuus'. (The latter combines nocuus with the negative prefix in-.) Both words can also be traced back to the Latin verb 'nocēre', meaning "to harm." Other nocēre descendants in English include the familiar innocent and the less familiar nocent, which means "harmful." Nuisance (which originally meant, and still can mean, "a harm or injury") is a more distant relative. Nocuous is one of the less common nocēre descendants, but it does turn up occasionally.

Example: The factory owners have said that they will upgrade the plant to comply with new regulations on nocuous emissions.

THE ODD WORD

Gourmet

A person devoted to refined sensuous enjoyment (especially good food and drink).

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Eaten out of house and home

Meaning: To eat large quantities of one's food; to eat a lot of food someone has in their house.

Origin: This phrase is usually used hyperbolically, while having been long attributed to Shakespeare, was in fact used earlier by others and has now been demoted to 'popularised by' rather than 'coined by' the bard. There is a definition of the expression in Thomas Cooper's glossary Thesaurus Linguae Romanae Britannicae, 1578. Shakespeare picked this up in Henry IV Part II, 1597,' It is more than for some, my lord; it is for all, all I have. He hath eaten me out of house and home; he hath put all my substance into that fat belly of his: but I will have some of it out again, or I will ride thee o' nights like the mare'.
Example: Kim may be tiny, but she has a big appetite, so don't be surprised if she eats you out of house and home.

QUOTE BOX

A wise person should have money in their head, but not in their heart.

—Jonathan Swift
